Instructor Highlight:

Robert Amaral

As a bird watcher and person drawn to nature, Robert Amaral enjoys the challenge of drawing and painting birds. He has found that it heightens his awareness of the natural world, and he strives for a degree of accuracy in his drawings of birds. Robert received a Bachelor of Arts, Fine Art from California State University and a Master of Arts in Medical Illustration from University of California. He spent a combined 25 years at Children's Hospital Los Angeles and at Keck School of Medicine, University of Southern California working as a Medical Illustrator. Robert will be teaching Beginning Bird Drawing this term.

Port Angeles

Classes meet at the main Peninsula College campus unless otherwise noted.

Olympic Peninsula

Biodiversity Workshop

All across the globe, the ecosystems that provide benefits that support human life are in decline. Here on the Olympic Peninsula our local biodiversity is vulnerable to the same threats as ecosystems everywhere – habitat loss, overexploitation of resources, and climate change, among others. Working in small groups or as individuals, participants will study the contributions of biodiversity to our lives, our livelihoods, our culture, and our sense of place.
