Instructor Highlight:

Carolyn Guske

"Although I am primarily an animal artist, I am drawn to all facets of nature. Painting birds and animals intensifies the connection that I feel to these remarkable creatures. Drawing and painting these animals is my effort to help promote these endangered breeds.

My background includes 30 years as a painter in animation. Beginning first in Ink and Paint, then attending Fred Fixler's California Art Institute for 4 years, and then on to a career as a background painter and visual development artist at Disney, Dreamworks, Warner Bros. and Sony."

Carolyn will be offering Drawing Basics, Drawing from Photographs and Next Stage Drawing this Winter.

Special Features

Public Policy Workshop

This course offers those interested in community affairs the opportunity to develop a position on the basis of evidence and analysis. Working as a team of professional colleagues, students will examine a public policy issue of local interest. Students will gather information from literature, media, public documents, experts, and stakeholders and learn how to identify and clearly state the core problem. Students will organize and analyze the evidence, develop policy positions, and present and defend findings and explain the rationale for government involvement in the issue.

Item # T757 Department: C-SF061 Section: J
1/24/2017 to 2/16/2017 | RM: 109 | Instr: G. Hughes

Instructor Highlight: Geoff Hughes

Geoff Hughes is a policy analyst with extensive experience in applying scientific evidence in the development of public policy. He has worked in state and local government, higher education, and in private consulting, and currently works for Zoë Environment Network, a small international NGO with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland.

Geoff earned a BA in philosophy and history from the College of Wooster, a Master's degree in Public Administration from Cornell University, and a certificate in climate change from the University of Washington. He has led groups of students and professionals – regardless of their experience or prior knowledge – in the analysis of current public policy issues. Geoff will be teaching a Public Policy Workshop this term.
